Rarely does a Dutch novel merit a full page in Der Spiegel, but Het Diner (Das Dinner auf Deutsch) did and does. A riveting story of mental illness, political ambition and the challenges of raising adolescents is the narrative, which is driven by an intricate and perfectly detailed of a tense dinner in an elite restaurant.

Nighthawks is a 1942 oil on canvas painting by Edward Hopper that portrays people in a downtown diner late at night as viewed through the diner's large glass window. The light coming from the diner illuminates a darkened and deserted urban streetscape. It has been described as Hopper's best-known work and is one of the most recognizable paintings in American art.
